

WHO'S MOVING TO TEXAS?

A demographic profile of new Texas residents

Many people from other states in the U.S. are deciding to make Texas their home. These new Texans, or net domestic migrants, are more likely to be between the ages of 25-44, more ethnically diverse, rent their homes, have children, and more likely to have been born in another country than current Texas residents. They are also more likely to have a Bachelor's degree or higher, earn more than the median income of current Texans, and have occupations in business, computer, engineering, and health care.

Residents:

Current Texas residents who have lived in Texas for a year or more.

Net Domestic Migrants:

The difference in the number of people who moved to Texas from another state in the U.S. and those who moved out of Texas in the last year.
